In the course of the evidence certain grave allegations were made against a police consable, but whether the officer was European, Indian or Chinese was not stated. On the morning of the 29th ult., the deceased and another Chinaman were walking along the street in the neighbourhood of Macgregor Barracks, and as it was raining they kept under the verandah. According to the companion of the deceased, the constable on duty there hit the deceased a blow on the left mide; both Chinemen ran away and then the deceased fell down dead in the gutter. Dr Marques, who made a postmortem examination of the body, stated that death resulted from hemorrhage, In consequence of rupture of the spleen probably caused by a severe kick or blow. address .- Communicated,

MR J. J. Francis, Q.C., has been appointed President of the British Mercantile Marine Officers' Association.

Some German renders of the Japan Mail having taken exception to the views expressed in our contemporary regarding Germany's policy in the East and its consequences on Japan, the editor gives an explanation of his attitude, from which explanation we claimed, we are aware, that her purpose in joining Russia and France was to create a combination sufficiently strong to deter ineffectual and suicidal resistance on Japan's We cannot believe anything of the Resentment because the Japanese Government disregarded a warning from Berliu, may have supplied a partial motive, but the origin of Germany's procedure is to be sought in European politics. We are glad to think, bowever, -and we say it in all sincerity-that the umbrage now entertained by the Jupanese against Germany is not likely to be long-lived. In the very article from which we have quoted above, and in the very sentence succeeding the expression of views traversed by our German friends, we wrote: - ' After all is said and done. Germany has a really genuine senti-- ment of friendliness toward Japan.' She has i given a hundred different proofs of that sentiment during the past fifteen years, and she will add to the catalogue so soon as she breaks away from the unnatural coalition that now holds her. Unfortunately, howover, great mischief has already been done; mischief to British interests eminently, and mischief that will lead to bloodshed on a large scale hereafter. We can never be aconsed of being Russophobes. Our writing for the pasi lifteen years completely disproves such a charge. But this we say, that when Russia aspires to acquire constructive rights to a vest littoral on the Pacific. the Power assisting her to acquire them, playe a part emphatically hostile to Great Britain. That is the sense in which the recent conjunction of Powers, above all, Germany's association with it, presents itself to our eyes. Her good relations with Japan may soon be restored, and probably will be, but the position in which she has helped to place Russia constitutes continuous menace to England's interests, to Japan's integrity, and to the peace of the East. We believe that Germany's policy has been mistaken, and we further believe that the German people already recognise the fact.

Count Okuma, the loader of the Japanese Progressionist party, appears to be following Mr (diadstone's example as to active physical exercise. He does not out down trees, however, but saws wood in his garden, having, it is said, become quite skilful in the work. Count Karoda has sent him a saw as a present. - Kobe Chronicle.

A CELLULOSE paint is recommended by a French writer for the protection of steel ships and all exposed metal surfaces. He would use a ten per cent, solution of ordinary wood pulp, coloured as desired, with the addition, at the time of using, of some siccative, such as un acid sait of lead or of manganese. This paint is said to be more adhesive than oil paints, and it finally becomes insoluble and absolutely unalterable.

Ar the end of a column of sarcasm about the artistic demerits of the British dollar the Straits Maritime Journal remarks Truly we are long suffering. It might be sold certainly, but then there is the danger of its being bought and preserved as a relic to be handed down to future generations as a witness of this most stupid bulunder. No one concern. ed will wish to have the memory of the incident perpetuated, so the inkstand will probably find its way into the melting pot. FORMOSA AND HONGKONG.

A Yokohama correspondent writes follows to the London Daily News :-English people have made up their minds wanfoo to watch events. This telegram may that the Japanese are a delightfully artistic, clever, and generous race, whose expansion should be encouraged. They do not understand that the Japanese, at the same time, are ambitious and scheming, as well as courageous, nor the fact that in ther expansion may be directed against England. I may be permitted to point out, however, that Formosa will dominate Hongkong, and that the Canadian Pacific route from Vancouver to Hongkong and Singapore has to be considered. England has no coaling station north of Hongkong, and with Formosa and the Pescadores in Japanese possession, there is no place equally suitable. Yet England has a very large mercantile marine trading in the China and Japan seas, and the next few years must witness an immense de-

ANOTHER BUBBLE PRICKED. THE LOOKER-ON. The number of Blackwood just published has an article on many things, including the daily newspaper, which is proclaimed to be from the pen of 'The Looker-On.' Lookers on are proverbially said to be the best chess players, and this particular, Looker-On is evidently self-satisfied that he is the best chess player, and the best everything else as well. How or why he founds his claim to be 'the' Looker-On-the one and only-we have no means of ascertaining. His discourse, as we have said, is chiefly about the daily newspapers, but he women's hats, and politics, and the stage, and the season, and the out of season, and and in the nebulous and uncertain light warded on or shattered. Strategy was next of the present situation, I would not be tried, but the mule won every time. Then at all surprised to see such an event Mr Ward tried kindness, won the affections they were the best looking, but both are with high and mighty disdain on the who write for a daily paper. To have to wait a month before one's article appears in print seems to him a condition of things which of itself proves his entire auperiority over anybody whose article written to-day is to be printed tomorrow. Not knowing who the superior person is, we cannot know whether after all he does not dush off his article at the stock, top of his speed. If a man took a whole 5.—Light chesnut, roan mane.. Mr St. Andrew... 165 month over his copy, he might possibly do all the better work-or he very possibly might not. Show is not always sure as regards literary success. But at all avents

f a man could say 'I have toiled for three weeks at an essay, whereas you have scratched off one in two hours, he might believe himself entitled to feed his soul with the sonviction of his own solidity, gravity, and power of thought. But we are strongly inclined to the idea, if internal evidence is of much value in such cases, that 'The Looker-On' rattled off his article at a very considerable rate of speed, and without giving himself much time to think over what he was putting on paper. Indeed we can imagine a carping critic insisting that 'The Looker-On' was himself exhibiting an illustration of the very worst faults of that newspaper style which he professes to scorn so nobly. There is undoubtedly bad newspaper style as well as good newspaper style. It is so in all arts and crafts and things in general. But whether bad newspaper style does well to sit in judgment on all newspaper style is a question which may be considered open to "The Looker-On ' declares that the Press can ' make or unmake at its pleasure the reputation of a book." 'It can, without anything libellous, without a word the law could take hold of, or even a more delicate censor, blight or extravagantly puff up, the fame of a man.' Far be it from us to wish to disparage the influence or the power of the daily newspapers, but we doubt whether any reat work of literature or art was ever made or marred by criticism of any kind. We are still of opinion with Bentley that no man was over written down by anybody but himself. The new woman, we are told, is altogether 'a creation of the Press. The Ibsen craze is wholly a creation of the papers for their own 'advantage, as a much nearer to Japan than Hongkong, it is most fruitful garden of copy.' We yield we ?' one Looker-On can't very well we'-' in admira ion and regard for Ro bert Louis Stevenson. But if it had been possible to induce us to blaspheme, to deaire the echoes to be silent and trumpet thore syllables no more, it would have been after the endless fanfaronade joined in by every penny whistle over the too dramatic and poetic ending of that young man of genius.'. 'Our souls,' he says, ' became sick of Louis Stevenson, and this he further tells us 'was all the doing of the Press, its skill, its money, its energy, &c. Now we perate and go to $1.25 there would be an ception at the Lycoum on Saturday evenventure to assert that the Newspaper Press only expressed and echoed with regard to Sievenson's death the common feeling of all the educated public of these countries. a great light was suddenly extinguished. But the Press, it would seem, is as unstinted in its blame as in its praise when it is want of copy, 'The Looker-On' troduces with much profession of affect tion and admiration the name of the late Mr Edward Smyth Pigott, then gravely assures us that Mr Pigott's kind eyes were no sooner closed than there poured forth a flood of venom upon him -from the daily newspapers There was a disappointed English 'dramatist somewhere, 'The Looker-On' kindly supposes, who gave the word-which all the paragraphists, delighted with a new subject, seized shouting.' FLOUR FOR CHINA AT A LOW COST. Stockton, Cal., June 7. - Much interest is felt here over the announced intention of James J. Hill, of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads, to start a new line of steamers in the flour trade with China. THE CRICKET POET; OR THE MAN AT THE OVAL.

Nothing sounds more sweet to a Surrey Oval habitus than the ringings which terminate to the luncheon interval. Thrice the bell rings. Its first note warns everyone off the turf, its second is the imperative mood of the first. Just as its third and exercise. It's the body's fashion of telling you final niterance heralds the winding of the in health, with supper and sleep just ahead, a thin white line of players through the pleasant feeling. But weariness !- that's differblack-coated pavilion crowd, you hear a ent. That comes of monotony, of waiting, of merry voice, saying, 'Gentlemen! My loneliness. Weariness is of the mind, not of rhyme entitled " Home Again !" a welcome the body. But it can arise in the body, all the to Captain Stoddart, price one penny, same. If this bothers you at first, don't say, gentle men! and A. C., 'The Rhymster, followed by a roar of laughter, stands before you. You probably purchase the happy. For weariness means depressed spirits. rhyme, and this is how it reads:-

Off with your hats, boys, don't lag or linger, Of with your hats, raise a true English cheer; Falterers are not worth a snap of the flager, Stoddart, our pride, and his commules are here. How we rejoiced in their famous achievements, Oh, how we yearn'd for their well-carned ancees; Bafe, safe at home, let us give them a greeting, Crown them with honours, we cannot do less: True to their Captain, the best of good fellows, True to old England, the land of their birth, Proving to all that the grit of true Britans Turns out, when tested, the purest on earth: Though in a few of their flereest engagements, Like all good sportsmen, they suffered defeat, And like a sportsman, the pride of their party.

Own'd like a man they were honestly beat? Still when they came to the glorious old 'rubber,' Stoddart, like Nelson, addressed every man, Boys, let us think of the lads in old England England expects us to do what we can." History will tell of his gratified wishes, Tell how an Englishman's grit caunot runt. Proudly we still hold our own 'mongst the nations, Proud that our flag is not drugged in the dust. Honour our Stoddart, a prince amongst sportsmen,

Honour our lads who proved loyal and true,

Fifteen years ago I came to London with a rhyme on Ephraim Lockwood, the celebrated York. shire bat, and one day's selling at the Oval decided me. I sold the return half of my excursion ticket,' said Mr Craig, as one who should say that he has burnt his ships, and have been at this game ever since.

You wast to know how many copies of my rhymes I sell Well, I can't say ex. ago, after Surrey had been beaten once by your cookery book, Notts, I wrote a rhyme, entitled "Buckle on your armour boys and have snother try," giving, asid Mr Cruig, slowly, encouragement to Surrey. I brought round copies during the return match at the Surrey Oval on the Whit-Monday. I sold 4,700 copies in the nine hours. Stopped for mesls? No! a glass of Irish whisky was all I had during the day.' He resumed, after a moment's thought, 'I can always count on selling my rhymes to 250 out of every 1,000 A LADY, walking along a street in Edinruns to spare. "Inspiration?" said Mr Craig, looking up keeply. 'Don't you get at me. I know what good poetry is-I've read the poets; and as for my rhymes'-and here he blew the ash off his cigarette vindictively-'I smoke eight ounces of cigarettes a week, and can't stand barrel organs at any price." 'Any opposition?-well, scarcely,' and here he laughed sardonically. 'A few years ago a certain man came up to me and said he was going to show me a wrinkle or two. He'd written a "poem" on cricket, and had printed it, and was going to cut As he came into the Oval he told me to look out. I did. When I went round during the luncheon interval I saw him dismally sitting on his bundle of "poems," waiting. I says, "How are you getting on!" He says, "Not yet. I'm waitin' till the side is out, then I'll start sellin'." When all the side was out I gave him another look; he was still sitting on the bundle, and said he'd catch the crowd coming out when play stopped. I went and had a look at him catching that crowd,' said Mr Craig, grimly. 'He was being knocked about like a man swimming crown, but I didn't." What has contributed to my success? Well, several things. First, the forbearance of the authorities of the different grounds. I travel over the whole of Eugland and sell my rhymes on overy ground where first-class matches are played. Then I'm civil; I'm none the worse friends with a man because he won't huy—I go on laughing and joking always. Why, said Mr Craig suddenly, the late inspector of police at the Oval said I'd stopped more rows than all his men. There's also another thing-I'm honest; my rhymes never try to explain away the defeat of a good eleven. I don't call it a moral against a millstream. He sold two copies and wanted me to buy him out for half a victory. What do I do in the winter? Oh, there's football, I sell the Woolwich Arsenal programme, with which is incorporated,' said Mr Craig glibly, 'one of my rhymes, so that I'm at work pretty nearly all the year round. - W. Budget.

OFTEN TIRED BUT NEVER WEARY. Let's discuss this point for two minutes. Here's a man who says that at a certain period he hegan to feel "tired and weary." That's precisely the way ke puts it in his letter. Now anybody has a right to feel tired or fatigued (it's the same thing), after labour or much to hold up, to give it a rest. It is a natural and, "Stuff!" "humbug!" but study up on it. A man may be tired and happy, but not weary and and nerves all sagged down in the middle. And when you get both at once you will be wise to find out what's gone wrong.

It is a short letter, this is, and we can just as well quote the whole of it. The writer says: "It was in November, 1867, when I began to feel tired and weary. It seemed as if I had no | OFFICESstrength left in me. Before that I had always been strong and healthy. My appetite was poor, and for days together I could not touch any food that was placed before me. After every meal that I did succeed in forcing down I had such dreadful pains in the chest and back that I was almost afraid to eat. Then there was a sharp pain around the heart, too, as though I was stabbed with a knife.

"I lost a deal of sleep, and for nights together I didn't sleep at all. Then I began to lose flesh rapidly, and was afraid I was going into a consumption. Yet I kept on with my work, however, but it was a hard thing for me, because I was so weak and nervous that I trembled from head to feet. As time went on I gradually got worse and worse, and my eyes were sunken and drawn in. I consulted a doctor in Kentish Town. He gave me medicine, but it did no good. After all this I got the idea into my head

"One day a lady came into the shop, and plete without him. He seems to have been noticing, the state 1 was in, kindly asked how designed by Providence to bridge over long I had been ill. I told her all about it, and weary hours of between-play waiting, she said, You try Mother Seigel's Curative While he is busily engaged in handing out Syrap; it has made me well, and I believe it

Presently my food crowd that if 'you gentlemen' will not bey agreed with mo, and I enjoyed my meals. I his rbymes be must offer them to the the Syrup I soon got as strong as I ever was in my life. Since that time (now over four years ago), I have been in the best of health. I cousider that in all probability this remedy saved my life; at all events, it restored my health, and life without health don't amount to much.
